THE PROMISE OF THE FATHER

Isaiah 11:2; Zechariah 12:10; John 14:16, 17, 26; 16:13-14; Acts 1:4; 2:4.

When my heart is deeply burdened with depression, fear or grief, and relentless, grinding pressure breathes no whisper of belief, then the promise of the Father brings me comforting relief—through the Counsellor, the Spirit of Grace.

When I face unnerving choices with uncertainty and fear and I search in vain for guidance, for an answer to appear, then the promise of the Father makes the resolution clear—through the Spirit, the Spirit of Wisdom.

When I feel inept and fragile and incompetent to serve and I find it petrifying to stand firm and hold my nerve, through the Promise of the Father there is strength and godly verve—by the Spirit, the Spirit of Might.

When I face temptation's lure and the passion of the flesh, and I fear I'll be entangled in sin's sticky, clinging mesh, through the Promise of the Father I can stand in holiness, by the Spirit, the Holy Spirit.

When I find myself disheartened by my egoistic soul and I need to be more patient, and as gentle as a foal, through the Promise of the Father I find loving self-control by the Spirit, the Spirit of Love. When I come to God in prayer and I cannot intercede with effectual expression of an aching, yearning need, through the promise of the Father with new utterance I plead—by the Spirit, the Spirit of Intercession.

When a situation's hopeless and no answer can be found and I need a mighty miracle to turn things right around, through the promise of the Father signs and wonders may abound—by the Spirit, the Spirit of Power.

When my soul feels isolated and my Lord seems far away and I cannot see him clearly (it is even hard to pray), through the promise of the Father Christ appears like dawning day—by the Spirit, the Spirit of Revelation.

To fulfil the Great Commission I am promised teeming showers of renewal and refreshing from the Saviour who empowers through the Promise of the Father (as the devil darkly cowers) and the mighty name of Jesus over every rival towers, by the Spirit, the Spirit of the Lord.

Barry Chant © 2018